

ALOFT IN CARLTON

In seeking an alternative view, your intrepid correspondent ascended the church tower scaffolding, with permission, to inspect the work being carried out. Repairs to the tower and its steeply sloping roof are well in hand and are due for completion within the next week.

Bill Sharp is to be congratulated for his co-ordinating role between church, builders, architects and council. The builder, Cedar SteepleJacks, should also be praised for his sympathetic restoration work.

It is also hoped to check and restore the south-facing roof of the Nave this autumn, which together with the tower work, should ensure the building is both safe and sound for the next generation of Carlton Residents to appreciate.
